Would you like to send a boy or girl to one of the Church conferences? Fifteen dollars will send one person for one week. Last year more than fifty boys and girls attended.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES CLOSE BARIUM'S SCHOOL YEAR

Eleven seniors, three girls and eight boys, have finished their high school course and thus completed their stay at the Home at Barium Springs. The seniors and student body heard Dr. Ernest Albert Beaty of Davidson College in the commencement sermon and Dr. Samuel Spencer, Dean of Students at Davidson, in the graduating address.

The valedictory was delivered by Martha Evans who had the highest scholastic rating in the class and Ernest Austin, second honor man, delivered the salutatory address. The junior marshals, chosen on the basis of their record in high school work, were Mac McClure, chief, Lawton Rice, Oscar Utsman, Nancy Kyles, Bernice Kuykendall.

As these eleven seniors begin their new life there lies before them varied fields of interest and service. James Campbell and Fred Lentz hope to enter College in the fall. Martha Evans and Joyce Ferrell are enrolling at the Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte to begin their nurses' training course. Nellie Rae Sellers will return to her grand mother in Wilmington and Boyce Dean Smith will return to his father in Pink Hill; these two hope to secure work in their home communities. Clayton Miller will enlist in the Air Force for a period of four years. Four of the boys, Ernest Austin, Charles Creech, James Harwell, and Ralph Joyner have volunteered to the Draft Board in order to get their two year term of service finished before they begin their work or further training.

Freshman And Sophomore Classes Will Enter Troutman School

When school opens in the Fall of 1956 the freshman and sophomore classes of the Barium Springs High School will be enrolled at the Troutman school. Thus begins the process of transferring the high school from the campus to the community school at Troutman.

The junior and senior classes will continue at Barium Springs because there is insufficient room in the buildings at Troutman for these.

The senior class of 1957 will graduate from Barium. It cannot now be determined whether the class of 1958 will finish at Barium or Troutman.

Two Seniors Talk About Barium Springs

MARTHA EVANS

As a girl of twelve years coming to Barium, I was filled with mixed feelings. I was curious for I had never even visited an orphanage before. I was a little scared—of what I can't imagine—but I was positive it would be awful and that I would not like it. My preconception met with opposition from the first. The children we saw were laughing, playing, and having fun. My fright vanished.

We arrived just before dinner and at the table Miss Carpenter introduced me to Joyce Ferrell who was to be my roommate. She was friendly and helpful as were the other twenty-two girls in Rumple Hall, and I believe almost all of them crowded into our room that afternoon to get acquainted and to help me unpack and get settled. Later, we went swimming, after which I had an abundant supply of guides to take me on a tour of the campus. They really made me feel welcome.

But, I very quickly learned that life in my new home wasn't all play. Each child has a task varying according to his age. The smallest children start by learning to make their beds each morning. Later they are taught to sweep a porch or a room, to dust, and to keep their lockers neat in which they keep their toys. At a very early age everyone learns how to string and shell beans. It is not unusual to have six to eight crates to tackle at one time. However, we have learned to break the monotony with such diversions as singing, playing buzz (a game using numbers), or listening to a good jazz band over the radio.

A girl usually works in the dining room while she is in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. After that her jobs vary greatly. She may do almost anything from washing dishes to cooking meals, making clothes or mending them, cleaning house, helping care for the smaller children, or she may be chosen to work in the Snack Bar, as I do, although I sometimes wonder if I am not stretching the truth by calling it work.

In my leisure time I take part in many of the activities on the campus. During my sophomore year I was invited to join the Beta Club and was honored by being elected president for this year. I sing in the Church Choir and in the Glee Club, although I am skeptical as to whether either has profited by my presence. Last year it was my privilege to be asked to serve as Program Chairman on the Senior High Fellowship Council. Although I like some sports, this is just not my field. I try to play basketball, but have never made the varsity squad. This year could prove to be different since we have such a small number of girls in high school. My height does not help me as a guard.

JOYCE FERRELL

In the fall of 1949 there came to Barium Springs three frightened children, my brother, my sister, and I. We were met at the office by Miss Carpenter and a group of boys and girls. No longer were we frightened, but we were very homesick. Because of the thoughtfulness and kindness of everyone in our cottage we soon forgot our homesickness and were once again laughing and carefree.

The building in which I lived during my first two years is called Rumple Hall. There were twenty-four girls and we were very mischievous. We worked in the dining-room where each girl had two tables to serve and clear off and dishes to wash after supper and during the summer. We had ten girls working in the dish hall and we enjoyed our work because we sang a great deal of the time. We were very fond of changing the words to many of the songs to make them fit the occasion. Of all the years that I have spent at Barium I think my two years at Rumple Hall were the happiest.

In the spring of 1951 I moved to the Woman's Building along with the other girls in my class. There we were faced with new jobs such as working in the kitchen, laundry and sewing room. Also, a few girls were chosen to keep the house in good order. These girls were called "house cats". I was somewhat tomboyish during my two years at the Woman's Building, spending a good deal of my spare time in climbing trees.

In 1953 I moved to Annie Louise Cottage where there are always two big girls to help take care of the children. We worked with girls ranging from six to ten years of age. Girls of this age are very nice to work with because they say and do so many cute things. My work again was different from what I was used to doing. After school we did our regular work, such as cleaning the second and third floors.

The little girls cleaned first and did an excellent job for girls of their age. I also became acquainted with scrubbing and waxing floors. We had a day set aside for mending clothes if they needed it, and they usually did. Besides working I had lots of free time in which I could do almost anything—that is if it was in reason.

After living at Annie Louise for two years, I moved back to the Woman's Building and while there worked in the kitchen during the summer, trying to learn to cook. There was only one thing wrong—we cooked in such large quantities that I would hate to fix something for a small group and it would be likely to have too much seasoning.

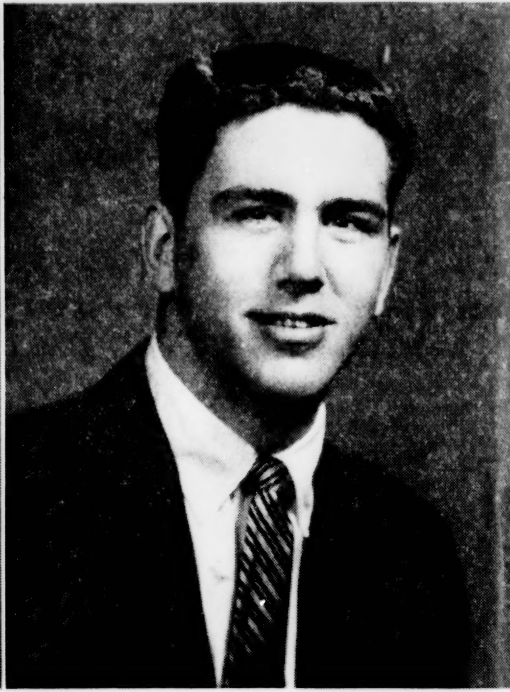

I am now a big sister. The big sister system is at present an innovation. Whenever a housemother wants to go off for some reason I take over until she comes back, or if

FROM LITTLE JOE'S CHURCH

REV. ROBERT R. COLLINS, Minister

This issue of the MESSENGER will come to you at a time when graduations from high school and college are taking place. Our own Senior Class is featured in this month's paper, and all of us here at Barium Springs are particularly proud of these boys and girls who have a very special place in the hearts of the entire Barium family. As they complete their high school work and go out to assume their responsibilities in an adult world, the word "commencement" takes on a new significance. It is not just the day when the Seniors receive their high school diplomas. Instead, commencement brings to our minds its first and true meaning, that of "beginning."

I have always liked the term "commencement" when used in connection with the graduating exercises of a school. For when rightly understood, graduation is always the starting point for some greater and higher achievement in life. This applies to the realm of the mind and of the spirit, and in reality the two cannot be separated. Paul knew this and so he wrote to the Philippians (3:12ff): "Not that I have already obtained this . . . but I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus."

If it should be my privilege to speak to all who will graduate this year, I would direct them to this statement which can be summed up in the words, "The Upward Call." For Paul knew that in this life there is no such thing as final attainment. He bids his readers to "hold true to what we have attained", but reminds them that any achievement, any accomplishment, is but a plateau in the climb "toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus."

It is well that this wisdom from Philippians be remembered by all who approach the commencement hour as graduates. Such words will help us to avoid the pitfall of false complacency that sometimes causes us to say, "At last, I've arrived. This is what I've been waiting for all these years!" And lest those of us who have probably passed our last day of formal commencement long ago sit back and say, "This does not apply to me," I would add this further word. No man outgrows his need for growth, and the upward call of Christ is a call to all people of every age. So at this commencement season, those of us Under The Steeple look with gratitude and pride at our graduates who move out into a world we of an older generation have prepared for them. And as they go forward with Bible and diploma in hand we know that this is but the beginning, for them and for us.

but maybe I can, as one girl teasingly said, jump up and bite their ankles! Such an important thing as school must not be omitted. We have our school on the campus and although our classes are very small, we have some excellent teachers. These small classes have their advantage for very few students get as much individual attention as we do.

The Church holds first place in importance in our Home and a great many of our activities revolve around it.

As a senior, I look back on my few short years at Barium Springs and wonder how time can pass so fast, but many things have happened, some sad and many happy; dances, hay-rides, Junior-Senior banquet, ball games, bull-sessions, parties—the list goes on and on, and I wonder how anyone could have such a mistaken idea of a place as I had of Barium. With my limited vocabulary I cannot put into words what Barium means to me, but, as I leave Barium to fulfill my life-long ambition to aid humanity as a nurse, I know I shall never forget the fun, work, study, and fellowship which played an important part in making life-long friends with the students and staff.

there is an odd job to be done, I am asked to do this job. By this system they are trying to teach us home relationship; that is to live as a family group lives in a normal home, rather than as large groups in an institution.

I participate in many extra-curricular activities which I love—piano, glee club, cheer-leading, basketball, working in the church and in the Senior High Fellowship.

Since this is my last year at Barium, I can look back and see that if I had not come to Barium I would not have been able to participate in as many high school activities. I realize how much I love it here and I appreciate the many privileges which I have had.

Now that this is my last year, I have begun to make plans for the future. The Home has an educational fund which will help to finance my training as a nurse and I will be obligated to repay this when I begin working; with this help I am planning to enter the Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte to prepare myself for a profession which has been my ambition since long before I was old enough to read the Sue Barton nurse books.
